A handful of the most optimistic shooters from the Kapunda rifle club, decided battled the elements and each other over the 800 yard range for the R Koehler Memorial trophy. The stand out positive was the absence of flies although the dust may have obscured them from sight. The very strong wind was changing in a very quick and radical way which had shooters looking for reasons of misplaced hits and wondering how to beat nature. With most of the members present just going about their shooting in the adverse conditions some did get a little upset with the elements and did mention it. As often stated in long range shooting it can be rewarding or humbling, depending on the day and the prevailing conditions. White patches did get a rise in use as some found new areas of the target not normally used in nicer conditions. Congratulations to L Mullins who won handicap trophy on the day using the smallest calibre allowed in target rifle competition. A thank you to the guys who setup and dismantled the targets and wind flags for the competition in very adverse conditions. Jade beat Grandpa Andy again so all is good in that camp.
